

City's Stores Stage Spring Opening Thursday

Thursday will mark the annual Spring opening in Circleville stores handling wearing apparel and accessories for women, girls, men and boys.

The merchants have obtained special stocks of new and appropriate merchandise and the stores prepared special displays for the Spring opening.

The Spring opening is an annual event in Circleville and the newest fashions for women and girls accentuate the showing of the fresh, new dresses, millinery, and accessories.

The merchants, while declaring that the stocks are heavier and the assortments larger than at any time during the recent war years, urged early shopping for Spring needs.

The stores are featuring the newest style creations in wearing apparel, particularly new feminine wearing apparel and accessories.

A survey of the various stores proved that the retailers have expended much time and energy and cash in preparing for their annual Spring opening.

With everything in readiness for Thursday's launching of the fashion event the merchants expressed confidence that their efforts would meet with the approval of shoppers generally.

In this issue of The Herald will be found the well-planned advertisements of the various stores and it is recommended that the advertisements be carefully checked and that readers visit these stores for their Spring requirements.

The stores whose advertisements appear today in connection with the annual Spring opening include:

Joffe's, I. W. Kinsey Men's Shop, J. C. Penney Co., Rothman's, W. T. Grant Co., Stiffler's Store, Smith's, Parrett's Store, L. M. Butch Co., Caddy Miller Hat Shop, and G. C. Murphy Co.

MUKDEN TURNED OVER TO CHINA; RUSSIANS LEAVE

Held For Theft

Nationalists Control City, But Communist Troops Are Deployed Outside

CHUNGKING, March 13 — Soviet evacuation of Mukden was reported nearly complete today, and Chinese Nationalist forces appeared to have a good grip on the Manchurian city despite a threat from Chinese Communist troops deployed outside.

A Central News Agency dispatch from Mukden said that Maj. Gen. Andrei Kovtoun-Stankovitch, the Soviet commander, will leave the city on Friday, completing the Russian withdrawal.

Reds Stay In Manchuria

A government spokesman said there were no indications that the Red Army's departure from Mukden was the start of a general withdrawal from Manchuria. He said the Russians had not yet set a date for that.

Chinese newspapers reported that three additional Nationalist armies will be sent to Manchuria. The vanguard of one army left from Shanghai yesterday.

A spokesman said France and China signed an agreement today by which French troops will begin to take over northern Indo-China from the Chinese garrison on March 15, completing the occupation by March 31.

Nationalists Reinforced

Nationalist forces in Mukden have been reinforced by American-equipped troops moving into the city. The 50,000 Communist troops gathered outside the city have not yet opened an attack, but a number of skirmishes have been reported.

Small scale skirmishing has been reported from the Fushan coal mining area 40 miles north east of Mukden. Communist forces are entrenched there. Last reports said that the Red commander, Gen. Chu Teh was at Fushan.

A Central Daily News dispatch from Harbin, a Russian occupied city about 300 miles northeast of Mukden, said that the Nationalist General Li Chao Lin has been stabbed to death. He was the head of the sino-Soviet friendship association.

In Changchun, a Chinese Nationalist spokesman said that there were no nationalist troops in Manchuria north of Mukden, except a small "peace preservation corps" flown to Changchun from Peiping.

Communists Active

Reports reaching Peiping said that Communists had increased their activity along the Chinchor-Mukden railroad apparently to hinder the movement of Nationalist reinforcements toward Mukden.

From the other extremity of China, in the south, there was

HITLER'S SLAVE, GOERING AVERS

Nazi Leader Takes Stand In Own Defense At War Crimes Trial

NUERNBERG, March 13 — Reichsmarshall Hermann Goering, a faded red scarf twisted around his neck, told the war crimes Tribunal toady that the first time he met Adolf Hitler he pledged the Fuehrer that he would do his every bidding.

The bulky reichsmarshall, pale and grim under the scorching klieg lights of the Nuernberg Tribunal, was the first of the Nazi defendants to testify in his own behalf.

Voice Emotional

In a voice heavy with emotion, Goering told the court how he had first met Hitler early in the 1920's and how he had worked with him against what he called "the shackles of Versailles".

At their first meeting, said Goering, his voice breaking:

"I said that as far as I was concerned he could dispose of me and my person."

Refreshing his memory from a purple notebook which he held in his ample lap Goering told how he had served as a fighter pilot in the first world war, ending the war as commander of the famed Richthofen squadron.

Opposed Republic

"From the beginning," he said, "I was opposed in every way to reaction and to the (Weimar) Republic. I could not combine this

SENATE GROUP FAVERS ARMY RULE OF ATOM

Committee Fails To Listen As Wallace Expresses Fear Of Fascism

WASHINGTON, March 13—Despite a storm of criticism, the Senate atomic energy committee went ahead today with its plans to give the armed forces an important voice in future atomic decisions.

It also planned to tighten up its atomic energy control bill to safeguard against leaks of vital secrets.

Military Control

Advocates of full civilian control suffered a defeat yesterday when the committee approved legislation to let an Army-Navy board review all atomic decisions touching on national security.

Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace immediately charged that the action raised the possibility that "we will be delivered into the hands of military fascism."

At best, Wallace said, the bill will make other nations suspicious—they will begin to wonder just what is ahead."

The Federation of American Scientists said the committee's action was "a clear declaration to the world that the people of the United States will put their faith only in military might."

National Security First

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R. Mich., declared, however, that national security must overshadow all other considerations until there is some kind of an effective international ban on the atomic bomb.

It was Vandenberg who proposed that a board composed exclusively of Army and Navy officers be responsible for all phases of the atomic energy program affecting defense.

The military board also would be able to advise the proposed five-member Civilian Atomic Energy Control Commission and could force disputed issues to the president for a final decision.

Vandenberg's plan was in the form of an amendment to a civilian-control bill introduced by Sen. Brian McMahon, D., Conn., chairman of the atomic energy committee. McMahon was the only member of the seven-man committee to oppose the amendment.

McMahon said the military

Workers Receive 18½ Ct. An Hour Increase In Pay

DETROIT, March 13—General Motors and the striking CIO United Automobile Workers reached a settlement today to end the auto industry's longest and most-costly walkout on its 114th day.

The settlement, announced after a surprise all-night bargaining session provides an 18½ hourly wage increase for 175,000 striking General Motors employees in 92 plants in 50 cities.

Under union rules, the strikers must ratify the peace pact before it becomes acceptable.

Federal Labor Mediator James F. Dewey, guiding light throughout the climactic talks since January 30 announced the settlement as follows:

"The parties have reached an agreement for termination of the strike with respect to national issues subject to ratification of the local unions," Dewey said.

Lewis Keeps Mine Heads Guessing About His Aims At First Of Coal Talks

WASHINGTON, March 13—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers (AFL), kept soft coal operators guessing today about the terms of a wage settlement which the union would ask or accept.

Going into the second day of their 1946 wage conference with UMW leaders, operators had be-

BOGGS TO HEAD FOOD PROGRAM

John G. Boggs, chairman of the county AAA committee, has been named to head President Truman's Emergency Famine Relief program in Pickaway County.

Boggs will enlist the aid of state and county agriculture councils in organizing food conservation measures.

An attempt will be made to unite citizens' organizations and food traders in furthering the program on a voluntary basis.

Boggs called attention to the importance of producing food—through gardening and farming—as well as conserving existing supplies, particularly of wheat products, fats and oils.

"Local food conservation goals are expected to represent the estimated additional amounts of wheat, fats and oils which can be made available for foreign relief," Boggs said.

"The managers and councils will seek, through the cooperation of local organizations, to have the objectives of the program placed before the entire population, he added.

WASHINGTON, March 13—Herbert L. Lehman prepared to-day to bow out as director general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration because of ill health.

WASHINGTON, March 13—Colonel Davis said after a conference with a three-man commission from the Continental Air Force that the civilians will be put on a "duty status" basis for 30 days. They will draw pay for 15 days and then be free to seek other employment without prejudice to their civil service standing.

Col. B. O. Davis Jr., commanding officer at Lockbourne Army Air base here, today recalled 300 civilian workers dismissed yesterday for them only a broad proposal asking higher pay and shorter hours—without definite figures—for bituminous miners. Lewis sprang a surprise by failing to be specific at yesterday's opening session.

A UMW spokesman indicated that the negotiators must agree on the length of the work week necessary to meet coal demands and settle the wage issue in the light of that decision.

It was evident that the miners wanted to avoid a cut in their weekly "take-home" pay as a result of shortening the work week. They now earn $63.50 for a six-day, 54-hour week, which includes 18 hours at overtime rates.

While spokesmen for the operators withheld comment and seemed still uncertain about Lewis' plans, one industry source said they were surprised and pleased by the "conciliatory tone" of Lewis' opening statement.

SAFETY AWARD WON BY LOCAL POWER DIVISION

High Electric Co. Executives Gather To Honor 7-Year Record Made Here

For the seventh consecutive year employees of the Circleville Division of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. are the recipients of the company's annual safety award.

The award was presented by company officials Tuesday night at a dinner meeting attended by approximately 50 officials and employees of the concern. Following a dinner in Betz' Restaurant, the group adjourned to the basement of the Elks' Home for the safety meeting and presentation.

Seven-Year Record

The award reads:
To the employees of the Circleville Division is presented this testimonial with commendation and appreciation for their observance of application of safety practices and for having worked seven years, or 226,737 man hours ending Nov. 29, 1945, without an accident resulting in loss of time to any member of the personnel."

Attending the dinner and safety session were members of the safety committees of six divisions composing the southern district of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. These are Chillicothe, Hillsboro, Jackson, Delaware, Seaman and Circleville.

Charles T. Gilmore, division manager in Circleville, was chairman of the meeting.

Those present included H. C. Clark, Columbus, general manager; Earl Grover, Columbus, general safety director; Carl G. Neff, Columbus, supervisor; Alvin Jones, Chillicothe, assistant safety director; T. A. May, Middleport, assistant general superintendent; and L. J. Kreig, Nelsonville, assistant superintendent.

Foreman Receives Award

The award honoring the division's perfect seven-year record was made to L. S. Lytle, general foreman here.

Gilmore said that the Circleville division includes 16 employees.

CIO TURNS BACK UPON LAUSCHE

Harrison Endorsed In Race Against Bricker For U. S. Senator

COLUMBUS, March 13 — The verbal slap of the Ohio CIO political action committee at Gov-

Frank J. Lausche in refusing to endorse his campaign for re-election was not entirely unexpected in capital political circles.

Labor's gradual drift away from support of Governor Lausche has been apparent since shortly after the governor took office. It stems from his refusal to consistently go along with the "progressive" thinking of the union.

Against Both Candidates

It was climaxed pointedly in the statement of Jack Kroll, state CIO president, who said none of the candidates for governor "has either a record or a platform to create enthusiasm among progressive ranks."

At the same time labor's slap at Lausche and simultaneous endorsement of Marvin C. Harrison, Cleveland, candidate for nomination as U. S. Senator on the democratic ticket, struck a deeper note than just an announcement of support within the state.

The CIO, in Ohio and the nation, has chosen Harrison because it believes he is the only democratic candidate with the energy and aggressiveness to defeat former governor Bricker in what they acknowledge will be a hard contest.

By defeating Bricker in the November election the labor party hopes to offset any chance of his receiving the 1948 Republican presidential nomination.

SOVIET THREAT TO TURKEY, IRAQ 'SEEN IN MOVE'

U. S. Demands Explanation
As Rift In Big Three
Relations Widens

the war, one of the major powers is taking unilateral action there in complete disregard of treaty obligations.

The State Department indicated its concern with the unusual step of making public its reports of Soviet troop movements before getting a Russian reply to its note asking whether the reports are true and if so, for an explanation.

What Are Reds Up To?

The department left no doubt that its reports were true—a fact which made extremely urgent an early answer to America's most baffling diplomatic question:

"What is Soviet Russia up to now?"

American officials frankly admitted they did not know.

They have bluntly asked the Soviet government to explain.

In the meantime it appeared that the three Soviet columns were intended for any or all of three troubled areas in the Middle East:

TURKEY—Where Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov has asked for Soviet control of the Dardanelles and has indicated he may ask for the two eastern Turkish provinces of Kars and Ardahan.

IRAQ—A former British mandate in the heart of the Middle East where the British have tremendous oil holdings around Mosul.

CENTRAL IRAN—Where the Soviet government appears determined, even at the expense of treaty violations, to have a "very friendly" government.

U. S. Statement

The news that Soviet troops were moving the wrong way in Iran—into instead of out of the country—was reported by the state department in this statement:

"The Department of State has received reports to the effect that during the last week additional Soviet armed forces and heavy military combat equipment have been moving southward from the direction of the Soviet frontier through Tabriz toward Tehran and toward the western border of Iran (which adjoins Turkey and Iraq). This government has inquired of the Soviet government whether such movements have taken place and if so the reasons therefor."

The note to Russia was the second sent by the United States in seven days. The first accused Russia of breaking the Stalin-Roosevelt-Churchill declaration of Tehran to respect Iran's sovereignty. It requested withdrawal of Russian troops from Iran forthwith. That was made public last Thursday.

Soviet Does Not Reply

The note about reinforcement of Soviet forces in Iran was sent last Friday. The Soviet Union has not answered either note.

These developments emphasized more than ever that Iran, far more than any other trouble spot, is the core of Soviet-American difficulties and Big Three distrust and disunity, as well as UNO's first and most crucial problem.

The security council's ability to cope with this issue will test whether UNO is really an effective international instrument or, as its critics have charged, a weak imitation of the old League of Nations.

Iran is a "perfect" test case of many of the fundamental issues which plague the Big Three. It is in the heart of the undeveloped but rich Middle East which connects Asia, Europe and Africa. It is at the East-West crossroads of the world's highways, waterways and airways. But most important it is the vital link in Britain's empire lifeline.

Earlier British Issue

Heretofore, the Iranian situation has been a controversy between Britain and Russia. At the London security council meeting Britain was Iran's "friend in court" when the Russians were accused of interfering in Iranian internal affairs. That was before the March 2 deadline for withdrawal of foreign troops.

Now the United States has replaced Britain as the accuser of the Soviet Union. American officials are insisting that the terms of the Tehran declaration of 1943 be strictly adhered to.

The string of events leading to this crisis started last fall when Iran, with the war over, wanted British, American and Soviet troops to begin leaving its territory. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes proposed late in November that all Big Three troops be evacuated by January 1.

Russia Stays Put

Russia refused and asserted it would stick by Iranian-British-Soviet treaty of 1942 and get out six months after the war—March 2. Her excuse then was that prior removal of Soviet troops would cause further trouble in northern Iran where an alleged Soviet-sponsored autonomy movement was in full swing in Azerbaijan province. The Soviet had refused funds.

CITY WITH THE SHAKES

Want to Feel Earth Quake? Visit Helena, Mont.

MAIN STREET, HELENA—This is the mess the big quake of 1935 made of the Montana city's Main street.

By RICHARD H. SCOTT
Central Press Correspondent

HELENA, Mont.—"Give me a bucking horse—anytime."

This generally assented preference to feeling an earthquake was expressed by a resident of Helena, the city where earthquakes occur on an average of about two every three days and at not too infrequent intervals cause similar sensations to that of riding a bucking horse.

The Montana capital city has had more than 2,800 earth movements since the weather bureau began keeping records in 1935, the year of the city's greatest quakes.

According to geologists, the jolts occur when millions of tons of rock in a great batholith near Helena, settle, causing a vertical quake instead of the usual horizontal quake caused by the earth sliding towards the sea.

The amount of the settling of the batholith, a huge mass of igneous rock of unknown depth, determines the seriousness of the jolt.

Grim Experience

It is not a novel experience but a grim one for the older residents of Helena who can remember vividly feeling the earth "go crazy" beneath them and seeing buildings crumble and their neighbors killed in that 1935 earthquake which headlined nearly every newspaper in the nation.

All people like to think that the one thing that is solid and secure in this world is the ground beneath them. Helens cannot and they, naturally, do not like it.

Last year, the city survived what became known as an "invasion" of the "decade jitters." This wave of fear came following the broadcast of a news story over the Helena radio station. The broadcast story pointed out that the city had suffered its two greatest jolts in 1925 and 1935.

The broadcast put emphasis on the fact that another 10 years had passed and that citizens were getting premonitions that another major quake was due to hit Helena.

NOBODY HOME, NOW!—Quake shook off walls of this Helena home.

out on the plains outside the city and camped, afraid to return to their damaged homes. They spent days there, fearing that an even worse jolt might come.

The broadcast put emphasis on the fact that another 10 years had passed and that citizens were getting premonitions that another major quake was due to hit Helena.

Broadcast Stirs Citizens

Immediately following the broadcast, the populace began to stir, giving a miniature performance of the panic created by Orson Welles' "Men from Mars" epic.

One call after another flooded the radio station. Many had misconstrued the word premonition for prediction and wanted more details. Others said flatly that they were leaving their homes and moving elsewhere. Sale of real estate tumbled.

Thus the decade "theory" was blasted and Helena felt a little easier.

Now, another year has passed and the 15,000 people in Montana's capital city are less earthquake-conscious.

to allow Iranian forces to enter Azerbaijan to put down the movement.

The United States removed its troops by Jan. 1 anyway and the British removed theirs by March 2.

But the Soviet government announced that the Red Army was remaining in certain parts of Iran until the situation there was clarified.

Now it is reported the Russians are sending more troops equipped for combat—into the area.

Iran's Premier Returns

The Iranians arraigned the Soviet Union before the UNO security council in London in January, accusing the Soviets of violating Iran's sovereignty. The council referred the dispute back to the parties for direct negotiation after both indicated their willingness to do so.

Iranian Premier Ahmed Ghavam returned to Tehran yesterday from his unsuccessful mission to Moscow where it was reported the Russians made demands he was unable to accept. These demands, reported unofficially, would have made Iran a virtual puppet of the Soviet Union both politically and economically.

The premier's position is uncertain. The left-wing Tudeh party is boycotting the parliament where lack of a quorum yesterday prevented it from voting to extend its own life.

SPRINGFIELD, O., March 13—The Rev. J. G. Jackson of Cincinnati was placed under $500 bond today and bound over to the Clark county grand jury. He pleaded guilty in municipal court to issuing a check with insufficient funds.

WASHINGTON, March 13—House members have decided it is easier to face old age without pensions than the November elections with them.

They voted, 217 to 116, late yesterday to side-track a bill which would have cut them in on the civil service retirement program. And as far as its author, Rep. Carl Vinson, D., Ga., was concerned, the whole idea is dead "for a long, long time."

Moreover, it is regarded as unlikely observers that the AFL will actively campaign among its members for any group of candidates. The AFL's recently organized non-partisan political-action group will probably not be heard from during the election season.

The premier's position is uncertain. The left-wing Tudeh party is boycotting the parliament where lack of a quorum yesterday prevented it from voting to extend its own life.

HELENA, Mont.—"Give me a bucking horse—anytime."

This generally assented preference to feeling an earthquake was expressed by a resident of Helena, the city where earthquakes occur on an average of about two every three days and at not too infrequent intervals cause similar sensations to that of riding a bucking horse.

The Montana capital city has had more than 2,800 earth movements since the weather bureau began keeping records in 1935, the year of the city's greatest quakes. According to geologists, the jolts occur when millions of tons of rock in a great batholith near Helena, settle, causing a vertical quake instead of the usual horizontal quake caused by the earth sliding towards the sea.

The amount of the settling of the batholith, a huge mass of igneous rock of unknown depth, determines the seriousness of the shake.

Grim Experience

It is not a novel experience but a grim one for the older residents of Helena who can remember vividly feeling the earth "go crazy" beneath them and seeing buildings crumble and their neighbors killed in that 1935 earthquake which headlined nearly every newspaper in the nation.

All people like to think that the one thing that is solid and secure in this world is the ground beneath them. Helens cannot and they, naturally, do not like it.

Last year, the city survived what became known as an "invasion" of the "decade jitters." This wave of fear came following the broadcast of a news story over the Helena radio station. The broadcast story pointed out that the city had suffered its two greatest jolts in 1925 and 1935.

In 1925, a major earthquake rocked an area of 50,000 square miles. While the epicenter was near Three Forks, Mont., some 66 miles from Helena, the Montana capital city was badly shaken and damaged by the jolt.

The 1935 quake centered near Helena and was felt as far west as Spokane, north as Alberta, Canada, and south as Sheridan, Wyo. In Helena, it caused an estimated $4,000,000 in damage and four people were killed, many injured.

Hundreds of the residents went

The CIO claims a membership of 400,000 and officials say each member probably influences another vote of a wife or close relative. However, it is doubtful if the organization could effect even a 50 per cent turnout.

Moreover, it is regarded as unlikely observers that the AFL will actively campaign among its members for any group of candidates. The AFL's recently organized non-partisan political-action group will probably not be heard from during the election season.

board would be empowered to "pass on anything from the hiring of janitors at atomic energy establishments to the construction of atom bomb plans."

The board, he said, could "check every telephone call every memorandum written and the hiring of all personnel."

The committee decision climaxed a long fight behind closed doors in which President Truman backed an all-civilian committee and the Army demanded a voice in future atomic decisions.

OPA INCREASES PRICES OF FEED, HALTS BEEF AID

Ceilings On Heavy Hogs To Be Cut Sept. 1; Cattle Subsidy To End June 30

Changes in subsidies and price ceilings for livestock and grains produced on Pickaway county farms were announced Wednesday by Paul A. Porter, head of the Office of Price Administration.

The changes were made in line with the food and feed conservation program outlined by President Truman on February 6. They will help adjust livestock feeding to the reduced supplies of feed grains and encourage more prompt marketing of grain supplies, OPA officials said.

Feed Distribution Studied

It was also announced that the Department of Agriculture is considering action to assure more equitable distribution and effective use of feed grain. The coordinated program is intended to help make it possible for the Government to meet foreign food commitments.

Steps to be taken in the program are as follows:

1. Lowering of the ceiling price on heavier weight hogs after September 1. A lower ceiling price on heavier weight hogs before September 1 is under consideration with the idea of encouraging farmers to finish hogs at lighter weights, and thus make more efficient use of limited feed grains.

2. Termination on June 30 of the subsidy of 50 cents per 100 pounds being paid cattle feeders.

Grain Prices Raised

3. Increase of ceiling prices on grains, effective March 4, as follows: wheat, 3 cents a bushel; corn, 3 cents a bushel; barley, 4 cents a bushel; oats, 2 cents a bushel; grain sorghum, 9 cents a hundred pounds. Ceiling prices for rye, which go into effect on June 1, will be increased by 4 cents a bushel.

4. Changes in corn and processed grain price regulations designed to help restore normal distribution by country elevators and carload sellers.

MEN and WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Eleven more men from this area have been discharged from the Army at Camp Atterbury, Ind., according to lists received Wednesday.

They are Cpl. Charles W. Wilson, 203 West Mill street; Pfc. Dean Hoffman, 159 Town street; Cpl. Clyde J. Leist, Circleville; S/Sgt. Orval J. Ray, Jr. Mt. Sterling; Second Lieutenant, Leslie W. Fortney, Air Corps, Amanda; Cpl. Cecil C. Spangler, Route 2, Orient; Pfc. Ralph Fausnaugh, 116 West Mill street; S/Sgt. Lawrence R. Liston, Jr., Route 3, Circleville; Pfc. Joseph Conrad, Route 1, Amanda; S/Sgt. Charles R. Doyle, New Holland, and S/Sgt. Nolo W. Gulick, Ashville.

After serving three and one-half years with the armed forces, Paul (Woolie) Clifton has returned to his job at the Spur Filling station, 309 West Main street.

Rev. Swearingen Speaks On 'Game Of Life'; Housing Need Emphasized

The Rev. Clarence Swearingen, of the First Methodist church, spoke on "The Game of Life" at the basketball night meeting of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce in Hanley's Tuesday night.

The coaches and the first and second teams of the Circleville high school basketball squad were honored guests.

Rev. Swearingen called life "a game in which we should obey the rules, and in which we should have reverence and respect for the umpire and referee."

Self Confidence Stressed

"Persons who believe in themselves and their ability to do things, and believe it strongly enough are the ones who are going to succeed," he said.

Senior members of the basketball squad present were Jack Dennis, Earl Palm, Wilson Clark and Jack (City) Stout. Juniors were Bob McCoy, Rod Heine, Jack (Country) Stout, Bob Steele and John Fissell. The lone sophomore, Paul (Skeet) Smallwood, was unable to attend. Bob Smith, manager of the team was also introduced.

The coaches, John Daugherty, head coach, and Steve Brudzinski, assistant, were introduced by Virgil Cress, a member of the athletic board.

James L. Yost, presiding over his first C. of C. meeting, stressed the need for adequate housing in Circleville. He called upon Paul Johnson, of the housing committee, for a report on the housing project.

Johnson said that a project soon would be completed so that approximately 25 lots will be available in the South End, with veterans to have first preference.

ONE WORLD, ONE PEACE

THERE was a memorial dinner the other night in New York, in memory of Wendell Willkie, the "One World" man who gave all that he had to spreading that conception of life and progress. Dorothy Thompson, one of the guests, found herself wondering whether there wasn't something wrong with the speeches. They were good, but they failed to tell "what kind of one world" was wanted. The speakers seemed to assume that one world all under one government would do the job.

Maybe it would—if the people handling the job were near enough to perfection. But having just fought the bitterest war in human history, who could expect a perfection good enough and long enough to get established, and endure? There seems to be general peace in the world just now; but it is not one big, acceptable, satisfying peace. We know it is a forced peace, and may fall apart as did the artificial peace undertaken a generation ago.

What the world needs first of all is "One Peace."

And after that, perhaps, a strong sense of what Daniel Webster put into his greatest speech: "Liberty and Union, now and forever, one and inseparable." We are still a long way from that ideal.

TOO MUCH CASH

THE playboys are certainly throwing money around at Miami, these days. And it isn't just the horses, either. The dogs have come into their own special glory, and are reported as winning and losing their masters' money at the rate of $1,400,000 a day, with 20,000 to 30,000 persons engaged in these noble pursuits. The gamblers will bet on anything, and are certainly riding high, wide and hand-some while the spree lasts.

When the cash runs out, they say, the sports will cash in their war bonds, often the last bond between them and home. And what then? Devious are the ways of gamblers, and hope springs eternal. But it seems self-evident that a much larger group than usual will have to write home for money.

TRUST IN PEOPLE

HERBERT Hoover, who knows as much about feeding hungry people as anybody living, made a remark the other day that is worth remembering as an expert's judgment on human nature. "I believe," he said, "that less food was consumed per capita in the last war, when we had voluntary rationing, than during this war when we had compulsory rationing."

If this is the case, it reveals people in a better light than usual, and suggests putting more trust in each other, about many more things than we are usually willing to do. Our supposedly weak human nature may be, on the whole, better and stronger than we think.

WASHINGTON—Diplomatic observers in Washington are convinced that Spain's formal rejection of the United States-British-French request that it fire Generalissimo Francisco Franco and his regime does not mean that Franco will refuse to get out voluntarily.

They regard the Franco rejection primarily as a "face-saving" device to bolster national pride in the face of the three-power demand.

It is not considered unlikely that a way already has been found for El Caudillo to make his exit with some grace and pave the way for formation of the interim government recommended by London, Paris and Washington.

Informed quarters suggest that Franco may find voluntary exile in the storied Balearic Islands, lying roughly 100 miles off the Spanish north coast.

There Franco would find himself in surroundings similar to those in which Napoleon, before Waterloo, spent time dreaming of a comeback—a comeback which became the dramatic but futile Hundred Days.

The Balearics are three in number, Majorca, Minorca and Ibiza.

ONE WORLD, ONE PEACE

THERE was a memorial dinner the other night in New York, in memory of Wendell Willkie, the "One World" man who gave all that he had to spreading that conception of life and progress. Dorothy Thompson, one of the guests, found herself wondering whether there wasn't something wrong with the speeches. They were good, but they failed to tell "what kind of one world" was wanted. The speakers seemed to assume that one world all under one government would do the job.

Maybe it would—if the people handling the job were near enough to perfection. But having just fought the bitterest war in human history, who could expect a perfection good enough and long enough to get established, and endure? There seems to be general peace in the world just now; but it is not one big, acceptable, satisfying peace. We know it is a forced peace, and may fall apart as did the artificial peace undertaken a generation ago.

What the world needs first of all is "One Peace."

And after that, perhaps, a strong sense of what Daniel Webster put into his greatest speech: "Liberty and Union, now and forever, one and inseparable." We are still a long way from that ideal.

TOO MUCH CASH

THE playboys are certainly throwing money around at Miami, these days. And it isn't just the horses, either. The dogs have come into their own special glory, and are reported as winning and losing their masters' money at the rate of $1,400,000 a day, with 20,000 to 30,000 persons engaged in these noble pursuits. The gamblers will bet on anything, and are certainly riding high, wide and hand-some while the spree lasts.

When the cash runs out, they say, the sports will cash in their war bonds, often the last bond between them and home. And what then? Devious are the ways of gamblers, and hope springs eternal. But it seems self-evident that a much larger group than usual will have to write home for money.

TRUST IN PEOPLE

HERBERT Hoover, who knows as much about feeding hungry people as anybody living, made a remark the other day that is worth remembering as an expert's judgment on human nature. "I believe," he said, "that less food was consumed per capita in the last war, when we had voluntary rationing, than during this war when we had compulsory rationing."

If this is the case, it reveals people in a better light than usual, and suggests putting more trust in each other, about many more things than we are usually willing to do. Our supposedly weak human nature may be, on the whole, better and stronger than we think.

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK, March 13—Mickey Walker: Prizefighter, two-division champ; saloon owner; artist in oils; actor. . . .

That's right—the former "toy bulldog" of the ring is now an actor, rehearsing in a regular professional production, "Walk Hard."

I trapped Mickey before he started practicing yesterday in a drab rehearsal hall just off Broadway. How was it going?

"Good enough, I guess," he replied. "I think I can lick this."

There never was anything or anybody Mickey thought he couldn't lick. Was he having fun?

"I'm enjoying myself. Not having any trouble memorizing the lines. They're bringing me along nice and easy and I'm learning a lot."

Mickey has the role of a prizefighter in the play, and Italian named Larry Bathelo. ("Me of all people playing an Italian!") Bathelo is the kind of fighter who concentrates on having a good time.

"Boy, I should have had that role 15 or 20 years ago," Mickey exclaimed. "I really could have played it then."

Played it? Mickey lived the part in those days, back in the 1920's and the early 30's. He had fun and fought in equal proportions, doing both with complete enthusiasm. He picked up the welterweight and middleweight champions of the world on the way, retiring undefeated at the latter weight, and then took on light-heavies and heavyweights during his last fighting years before quitting the game in 1935.

Mickey got into the acting business purely by chance. Gustav Blum, who is producing the play, has a lawyer who also does some business for Walker. When the lawyer heard about the play he asked Blum why he didn't try Walker. So Blum and Walker got together.

"I read the part over for him," Mickey said. "I didn't do so good, but I guess there was something about the way I did it that made him think I had possibilities. So, I did a little home work and the next time it was better. Mr. Blum coached me several times and then decided I'd do."

Mickey's role is a fairly important one, running throughout the three acts. He doesn't do any fighting in it, but the hero is a prizefighter and Mickey is giving some technical advice in addition to acting.

Now aged 45, Mickey looked to be in good shape, although he said he was a little flabby at 175 pounds. His combination bar and night club, which he calls "Mickey Walker's Saloon" (not saloon; I had to give the place some class), does well enough by him over in Elizabeth, N. J. He lives in nearby Crawford.

And painting in oils, which he took up about five years ago, is still his big interest. He's done about 50 pictures since he began. The ACA galleries in New York handle his paintings. He's sold five, getting $750 and $500 for two of them. He's self-taught and falls into what the art critics call the "primitive" class. He uses color boldly and people who profess to know some of his things are pretty good and that he's showing steady improvement.

After his experiences with the fight experts and art critics, Mickey ought to be able to take the drama critics in stride.

Yes, it was unfortunate that the note about the $1,000,000,000 loan for Russia got lost in the government files at Washington for several months, but a lot of us are like that about papers involving small sums.

DIET AND HEALTH

Joint Inflammation Causing Deformity

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

RHEUMATOID arthritis is an inflammation of the joints which occurs in young adults, and causes deformity of the joints. Although the exact cause of rheumatoid arthritis is not known, there are many things which suggest that in part it may be due to some sort of infection.

For example, such symptoms as inflammation of the affected joints, fever, rapid heart beat and loss of weight would seem to indicate that the joint inflammation is the result of infection.

Value of Penicillin Because of these facts I have received many letters asking whether or not penicillin is of value in treating arthritis since penicillin has been shown to be helpful in infections produced by a variety of germs such as the staphylococcus and streptococcus.

Treatment for arthritis has not heretofore by any means been satisfactory. Measures usually employed such as rest, both physical and mental, rest of the joints, the application of heat and the use of a diet rich in vitamins have all been found helpful to some extent, but none apparently have been

Gold Salts

According to Dr. Bernard L. Comroe of Philadelphia, the only chemical substance which appears to be of value in treating rheumatoid arthritis is gold salts. However, these gold salts are toxic or poisonous. Some patients with arthritis are not improved by this form of treatment, and when the treatment is stopped even in the cases that are improved, relapses occur. It has been reported by many observers that patients are improved by using high dosages of vitamin D.

Dr. Comroe tried treatment of six patients who had rheumatoid arthritis, with penicillin, giving at least 100,000 units daily for two weeks. In five, the condition had been present for at least four years. In one of these, it had started in childhood, had improved and then flared up again five years later. In the sixth patient, the arthritis had been apparent only

QUESTION AND ANSWERS

B. H.: Just what is rheumatic heart disease? The young man who has it is twenty-eight years old.

Answer: There is no evidence that the penicillin altered the course of the disease in any way. During the penicillin treatment, application of heat, proper diet, and the use of drugs for relieving pain were continued, to aid in relieving symptoms.

A great deal further study of arthritis is needed, since there is little known concerning its cause. In view of the fact that penicillin does not affect the condition, it would appear that infection may not play a very prominent role in the disease.

The arthritic should not, however, give up hope, for with proper care and the use of many of the measures suggested, improvement can be brought about.

RAYON FABRICS PLAY BIG PART IN NEW STYLES

Rounded Sleeves, V-Shaped

To Waist Lines

Here's a fashion picture of YOU-1946: your sleeves are still of the dolman-type or have a new "rounded" look . . . the neckline of your dress may be v-shaped or wide boat-shaped . . . your waistline will look smaller than it has for several seasons past . . . and your skirt will have a new easy flare.

You'll find that rayon fabrics will be playing a big part in your new spring wardrobe . . . in your dressy clothes and in your sports clothes. This is because the wide range of rayons are adaptable to almost any costume style.

Serviceable and Flattering
It's important, of course, that your new rayons be serviceable as well as flattering. You can be sure of good wear if you buy rayon fabrics that bear informative labels. A truly informative label gives you facts about the seam and fabric strength, color fastness, and the washability or dry cleanability of a rayon fabric—based on actual laboratory tests.

The leading rayon fabric for spring is the one-denier spun rayon that was introduced just a year ago; this fabric is made from the finest spun rayon yarn yet produced. It has a soft, luxurious texture that is particularly adaptable to draping . . . and takes dyes especially well so that many lovely clear colors have been achieved.

There are many pretty frocks for spring made of this one-denier spun rayon fabric. You'll find it used for novelty prints: it is also lovely in plain colors like the pale yellow used in an afternoon dress with shirred bodice, set-in belt, and full skirt.

Printed Rayon Back

The perennial favorite—printed rayon—is back again in full force this year. Designers have dreamed up a series of newsy "conversation" prints. There's one that was inspired by Indian sand painting. It's made up in a sophisticated two-piece style with a wide border down the side of the blouse and handsome side-drape skirt.

Then there's the "gem" print made up in ruby, emerald, topaz, or amethyst colors in two styles—dressmaker suit or full skirted afternoon dress. You'll be seeing lots of black prints on pastel colors like the "lazy doe" print used in horizontal bands on an attractive cap sleeved dress with huge hip pockets.

Crisp Fabrics

Crisp fabrics like rayon taffeta or faille are also good for dressy spring clothes. Striped taffeta is seen in a number of young styles. These are not the bold roman stripes of other years—but combinations of soft muted spring colors like gray and yellow. Faille is being used for two-piece suits or dressy "short formals" in clear sharp colors like coral, emerald green and yellow.

Sports clothes are just a little bit more feminine this spring. There's a rayon gabardine pinafore in a lime color called "frozen daiquiri" that the young set is wild about. Spun rayon broadcloth—printed or plain—makes up into smart classic style that look much more than their price. Butcher-linen spun rayons are ideal for suits, slacks, culottes and many other sports outfits. Rayon shantung is again in the limelight in comfortable suits for town and country with dolman-type or perky peplums.

RAYON FABRICS PLAY BIG PART IN NEW STYLES

Rounded Sleeves, V-Shaped
Necks Lend Trimness
To Waist Lines

Here's a fashion picture of YOU-1946: your sleeves are still of the dolman-type or have a new "rounded" look . . . the neckline of your dress may be v-shaped or wide boat-shaped . . . your waistline will look smaller than it has for several seasons past . . . and your skirt will have a new easy flare.

You'll find that rayon fabrics will be playing a big part in your new spring wardrobe . . . in your dressy clothes and in your sports clothes. This is because the wide range of rayons are adaptable to almost any costume style.

Serviceable and Flattering
It's important, of course, that your new rayons be serviceable as well as flattering. You can be sure of good wear if you buy rayon fabrics that bear informative labels. A truly informative label gives you facts about the seam and fabric strength, color fastness, and the washability or dry cleanability of a rayon fabric—based on actual laboratory tests.

The leading rayon fabric for spring is the one-denier spun rayon that was introduced just a year ago; this fabric is made

SLEEVE STYLES ADD TO ALLURE OF NEW COATS

Belted Waistlines And Full Skirts Give Softness To New Silhouettes

Spring 1946 will register another season for the soft coat, with sleeves the all-important factors, belted waist lines and fuller skirts with new hip yokes dominating. The silhouette focuses on dropped, rounded shoulder lines, deep cut armholes, full-top sleeves and rounded hips.

The style story starts with the sleeve, variety in sleeve details being responsible for style individuality. The newest of the sleeves stop short above the wrist, and commanding attention is the addition of a deep turnback cuff, often either braided or embroidered. Other variations show ploused fullness, leg o'mutton impressions, gathered tops, tapered wrists and almost unanimously the wing-loop armhole. Noteworthy is the push-up melon sleeve, sometimes dramatically interpreted with colored band insets and often false insets for a dressy black coat.

Wide Style Range

For even the most discriminating there is a wide selection in styles, ranging from the long belted dress coat to the twenty-five inch box coat in fleece. First in popularity is the short coat of various types. Whether belted, loose and flared, boxy or fitted in sleek tunic style from the briefest of lengths to three-quarters this shorter length is tops in fashion. Light and bright shades are well represented, navy and black being equally important. Cornflower blue, jade, Nile green, gold and scarlet are some of the rainbow colors seen in many of the short boxy coats.

Smartest looking and decidedly Spring, 1946, in these toppers is the flareback with balloon sleeves, or other smart variations of the big sleeve. For those who prefer the nipped waistline there is the short short coat, fuller of skirt, softer and rounder of shoulder, very feminine and often dressy.

Very effective also is the soft great coat, tailored and belted with wide self color separate belt. Done in the new light colors it is particularly smart looking when worn over black, brown or navy. Gentle front fullness and deep back kick pleat give it a generally classic, casual look.

Beige Tones New

On the more dressy side is the long-belted or just-fitted coat that often is trimmed with braid or trapunto embroidery, tucking and even beads. The Princess line is very interesting this season, its flared skirt, deep armhole cut and push-up bloused sleeve giving a new softness to the silhouette.

Definitely in the mood of Spring are the new light colors, a complete change from the brilliant shades that dominated the fashion picture during war years. Newest and most important are the beige tones, from pale parchment to true beige, pale grays and a new light amber shade. Grayed blues and a

DRESSY DRESSES NOW PREFERRED BY TEEN AGERS

For dresses the teen age silhouette adds up to practically sleeveless armholes, soft turtle necklines, skirts with easy front fullness, an important looking belt, often metallic trimmed, and deep scoop pockets giving fullness to the hips. Peplums are forward with much gathering to accentuate small waists, and softly shirred camisole fronts are most flattering.

Eyelet batiste touches and saddle stitching enliven classic cotton and spun rayon dresses, while scallop edging is seen in capes, necklines and peplums of printed dresses.

Touches of black, the teen girl's delight, are seen in rows of ric rac braid all over a snug bodice, cap sleeves and around the bottom of skirts on pastel color dresses. Black eyelet embroidery on pert peplums and shoulder ruffles give accent to pastel dresses with black overlaid. For the Junior Miss black lace touches lend a youthful sophistication to gay pattern prints for date dresses, while low round gathered baby necklines and short puff sleeves look sweetly picturesque. For dancing hours coarse lace net overskirts top slim black slit skirts.

beautiful pale green come in for second choice. Red of the scarlet family looks like a big favorite in toppers to be worn over navy suits, and shades of blue from a bright, lively navy to royal are well represented. For the softer dressmaker-type coat, perennial Spring navy as well as black will have a big place in the fashion parade.

As to fabrics, diagonal twills, fleeces, duveteens and velours are prominently represented.

EASE IN NEWEST GARMENTS GIVES GIRLS CASUAL, "HIPPIE" LOOK

In Junior fashions a rounder, fuller look through hips and shoulders allowing greater ease and more freedom of movement, stands out as one of the most strongly endorsed style trends this Spring season. The "hippie" look, of great style importance, is achieved mostly with tucks, Shirring or puffed pockets, or by setting full skirts on smooth, low bodices.

Widely shaped belts to contrast with fuller skirts and sleeves will make junior waistlines look even smaller. Often seen is a soft looking, set-in crushed fabric belt and a corset type of leather or felt laced up the front. Turtle necks with smooth jewelry necklines in crepes, prints and wools, while for cotton and dressy prints the low neckline is preferred.

Shortie Popular

The style story for girls' coats centers around the "shortie" with deep armhole and easy casual look, this topper unmistakably receiving top billing from the young crowd as the coat of the Spring.

Outstanding are two types — the boxy style that looks like an abbreviated Chesterfield, and the tie sash belt "shortie" that hugs the waistline and flares out in the skirt. Other variations in toppers include the collarless, loose coat bound in braid and the raglan style with convertible tuxedo front.

Cut with deeper armholes for ease in wear over suits, these toppers in companionable colors look stunning when so worn. A cocoa color topper over a yellow suit or a more dressy looking pale gray loose coat with colorful embroidery over a bright suit in one of the colors of the embroidery will make a sure fire hit. Equally stunning are the small checked toppers in bright colors that go with suits of the check teamed with plain skirts.

In plain colors of red, cocoa, yellow, Nile Green, pale gray and navy they hold promise of a gay Spring in coats.

REFERS ARE DIFFERENT

By no means overlooked is the refier, this season boasting many new details to give it that entirely different look. Many have skirt fullness at back formed by belt seaming. Revers often in bright colors, on dark color coats are peaked or rounded in many new ways.

Smart and dashing is the cardigan neckline officer's coat in cadet blue with red lining, with double rows of big nickel buttons. A half belt pulls in back fullness.

When it comes to suit styles deeper armholes, rounded shoulders and belted waistlines are the order of the day. Yokes are important, too, with wide welts or stitching emphasizing their depth. Skirts are pleated or flared; many have fly fronts.

A new version of the cardigan suit appears in a longer jacket with tucks at waist for the "hipped" look and wide pockets giving width to hips. The Basque suit will rate special fashion-attention.

In some instances of bell ringing, the bells are sounded by means of a cylinder, on the principle of a barrel organ; in others they are played with keys by a musician.

According to the English method of bell ringing, the bell, at each pull revolves round a complete circle and is under the full command of the ringer.

Among the early bird migrants to Ohio in March are great blue herons, killdeers, baldpate, bufflehead and ducks, blue wing teal, coot, woodcock, Wilson's snipe, swans and phoebe, martins and other songbirds.

Some migrating birds appear not to do so. One group of these is the Ohio song sparrows. They move south, but others from northern areas stop here, so you may see them all winter.

New Afternoon Dresses Are Gay And Graceful

NEW YORK, March 13 — A group of afternoon and cocktail dresses as graceful and gay as the tassel on a 19th Century window cord were among the highlights of Bergdorf Goodman's Spring custom made collection presented this week.

And some of them even looked like tassels with their gently flared, triply divided skirts. One showed a purple and white striped skirt knife pleated around the hem and hip under an all purple top which set the pattern for the entire group — a V-neck extending wide on the shoulders, a snug bodice and straight, snug short sleeves.

Accordion-Pleated Skirt

The same line was presented in a yellow printed skirt, accordion pleated, with a black he mand top, and in an all-over black and white pointed stripe which was tiered with grosgrain ruching.

All were distinguished by an appearance of ladylike coolness equally at home at a garden party or night club. The group of dressy short clothes of which they were part was one of the outstanding features of a particularly beautiful collection which ranged from suits and coats to complete formality.

Several slim dark dinner dresses were shown with irregular hemlines. One, in black, carried two ankle length points in back, another at center front. As it walked, they flickered like black flames around the ankles with distinctly wicked grace.

Skirts High In Back

Another was almost ankle-length in front, caught into a higher line at back with a grosgrain bustle bow.

One slim black skirt alternated scallop rows of crepe and net over a light slip.

A high waisted grey crepe was trimmed with a boat neck band of pearls and gold.

Necklines in both short and long party dresses were frequently low, but always within the bounds of ladylike good taste — there wasn't a "shocker" in a hundred — nor a boner.

It's hard to beat the beauty of line and finish which this store's master dressmakers have to spare.

WOMEN'S SUITS LOSE SEVERITY, GAIN SOFTNESS

Curving Contours Exciting:
Pert Tunics Flare From
Belted Midriffs

Longer jackets, collarless necklines variously interpreted, emphasis on small waistlines with belts, ties, insets, armholes cut deeply below rounded but broad shoulder lines—these are the fashion trends in suits for Spring. The longer jacket definitely establishes itself as an important suit fashion. Whether in the straight tailored version, the fuller peplum style, simple cardigan line or cutaway, accent is on length.

There's an air of excitement about these new Spring suits with a "dressed-up" look in their rounder, softer shoulder lines that taper down to a whisper of a waist, clever yoke and bodice treatment—all designed to flatter the feminine figure.

Tunics Pert, Flared

The tunic suit, pert and flared, belted or with snug midriff, or softly gathered at waistline, looks new and interesting, particularly when it has a cutaway front; while the short, boxy jacket suit, so young and gay looking, bids for great popularity. Some have clusters of pleats at back for a new look; and exciting indeed is the swing back, loose, boxy jacket that flares out in fishtail fashion worn with a slim fly front skirt.

With undiminished popularity the casual, one-button classic suit, softly tailored, goes on with its straight ruled shoulders, smart, wide military revers, tapered through the waist to slim the hips.

Stripes in yarn-dyed grays are numerous this season with much emphasis on manipulation of line, the stripes worked to form a square yoke effect for the jacket. Buttons often are used to accentuate the angles or meeting points of the stripes.

Colors Are Subtle

Color also tells a new story. This Spring will find colors more subtle with neutrals taking the lead and the bright shades of last season considerably toned down. As sharp foil for the light beiges and grays which seem to predominate, high fashion interest will focus on the golden brown tones and new bright navy. Grayed blues to the deeper tones, soft muted shades of green and aqua, pinks in dusty tones, all command their share of attention, while navy—this year on the lighter side—has its place in dressmaker type suits.

The tendency in skirts seems to be getting away from straight lines. Modified swing skirts are back, giving a softer, more graceful silhouette inclined towards a slightly greater length. Fly fronts, trouser and kick pleats are still very much in evidence.

The well-loved worsted gabardine, wool crepes and the twill family are fabrics most often seen, while doeskin type finishes, chalk-stripes, Glen plaid, sharkskins and coverts also contribute fabric interest.

DESIGNER URGES BRA-SHIELD FOR LARGER SLEEVES

How to "shield" the new sleeves is baffling many well-groomed women. Here's the answer by Harry Kleinert, designer for one of the leading manufacturers in this field.

"For long sleeves with deep armholes, simplest is the bra-form, in which shields are made part of a well fitting brassiere. A shield-style to slip in and out of is the bolero—brief batiste jacket with under-arm shields, cotton back panel a back shield, too."

METAL BUTTONS MATCH GLAMOUR OF NEW GOWNS

There is so much that is new in button originales! Metals have marched back from the wars and we have lovely shiny disks, balls, saucers in gold, and silver editions. New development, in buttons—that gleam are the handsome, shiny gold or silver luster buttons. They come in large, dramatic designs that look especially smart on suits or coats.

Lucites are the "glamour girls" among buttons this Spring. Diamond cut and hand polished, these B.G.E. Originales go wonderfully well with all the beiges and grays and neutrals due for great popularity this season. Wear Lucites, too, on black—on navy—and on all fluffy lingerie touches.

Gold buttons on white outfits—whether the buttons be gold metal, gold luster, or the lovely 14 carat goldplated buttons from which women are making their favorite earrings—is a significant fashion development. For color accents on clothes, there is the pert new flower button, or tiny fruit button. These have matching lapel pins, too... another evidence of metal returning from war.

WOMEN'S SUITS LOSE SEVERITY, GAIN SOFTNESS

Curving Contours Exciting;
Pert Tunics Flare From
Belted Midriffs

Longer jackets, collarless necklines variously interpreted, emphasis on small waistlines with belts, ties, insets, armholes cut deeply below rounded but broad shoulder lines—these are the fashion trends in suits for Spring. The longer jacket definitely establishes itself as an important suit fashion. Whether in the straight tailored version, the fuller plenum style, simple cardigan line or cutaway, accent is on length.

There's an air of excitement about these new Spring suits with a "dressed-up" look in their rounder, softer shoulder lines that taper down to a whisper of a waist, clever yoke and bodice treatment—all designed to flatter the feminine figure.

Tunics Pert, Flared

The tunic suit, pert and flared, belted or with snug midriff, or softly gathered at waistline, looks new and interesting, particularly when it has a cutaway front; while the short, boxy jacket suit, so young and gay looking, bids for great popularity. Some have clusters of pleats at back for a new look; and exciting indeed is the swing back, loose, boxy jacket that flares out in fishtail fashion worn with a slim fly front skirt.

With undiminished popularity the casual, one-button classic suit, softly tailored, goes on with its straight ruled shoulders, smart, wide military revers, tapered through the waist to slim the hips.

Stripes in yarn-dyed grays are numerous this season with much emphasis on manipulation of line, the stripes worked to form a square yoke effect for the jacket. Buttons often are used to accentuate the angles or meeting points of the stripes.

Colors Are Subtle

Color also tells a new story. This Spring will find colors more subtle with neutrals taking the lead and the bright shades of last season considerably toned down. As sharp foil for the light beiges and grays which seem to predominate, high fashion interest will focus on the golden brown tones and new bright navy. Grayed blues to the deeper tones, soft muted shades of green and aqua, pinks in dusty tones, all command their share of attention, while navy—this year on the lighter side—has its place in dressmaker type suits.

The tendency in skirts seems to be getting away from straight lines. Modified-swing skirts are back, giving a softer, more graceful silhouette inclined towards a slightly greater length. Fly fronts, trouser and kick pleats are still very much in evidence.

The well-loved worsted gabardine, wool crepes and the twill family are fabrics most often seen, while doeskin type finishes, chalk-stripes, Glen plaids, shantung and coverts also contribute fabric interest.

DESIGNER URGES BRA-SHIELD FOR LARGER SLEEVES

How to "shield" the new sleeves is baffling many well-groomed women. Here's the answer by Harry Kleiner, designer for one of the leading manufacturers in this field.

"For long sleeves with deep armholes, simplest is the bra-form, in which shields are made part of a well fitting brassiere. A shield-style to slip in and out of is the bolero—brief batiste jacket with under-arm shields, cotton back panel a back shield, too."

METAL BUTTONS MATCH GLAMOUR OF NEW GOWNS

There is so much that is new in button originals! Metals have marched back from the wars and we have lovely shiny disks, balls, saucers in gold, and silver editions. New development, in buttons—that gleam are the handsome, shiny gold or silver luster buttons. They come in large, dramatic designs that look especially smart on suits or coats.

Lucites are the "glamour girls" among buttons this Spring. Diamond cut and hand polished, these B.G.E. Originales go wonderfully well with all the beiges and grays and neutrals due for great popularity this season. Wear Lucites, too, on black—or navy—and on all fluffy lingerie touches.

Gold buttons on white outfits—whether the buttons be gold metal, gold luster, or the lovely 14 carat goldplated buttons from which women are making their favorite earrings—is a significant fashion development. For color accents on clothes, there is the pert new flower button, or tiny fruit button. These have matching lapel pins, too . . . another evidence of metal returning from war.

SPRING SHOES ARE AIRY

Spring shoes are things of beauty, requiring great deftness in the making, because of the degree of openness they feature. Open toes, sling backs and barefoot shanks appear in varying degrees of airiness.

HANDBAGS ARE DRAMATIC

Handbags have never been more dramatic than they are this spring, with gleaming surfaces in the ascendancy for popularity. Capacious exteriors to reveal spacious interiors—exquisitely fitted.

1946 CHAPEAUS ARE INGENIOUS BUT WEARABLE

Size Runs From Small, Neat 'Suitors' To Sweeping Sunshades

In the post-war world of broadening horizons, the hat has become the climax of the fashion story. For Spring 1946, American milliners have again demonstrated their ingenuity in creating hats that are both wearable and wonderful. From the small, neat "suitors" to the sweeping sunshades, these new chapeaus are all insouciant and young. Good lines, new contours and flattering colors mark these hats as post-war pace setting fashions.

The sailors that swing into Spring with the first robin are here again—with a difference. The straight little brim sitting jauntily off-the-face, this year, is combined with a crown of gentler contours, and frequently trimmed with soft ribbons or flowers. A smart example is the peak-crowned spool sailor which Madame Pauline fashions of navy shantung straw with a plaid taffeta band.

Bonnet Brims Lift High

Bonnets are beautiful and varied. A smooth, untroubled brow takes the spotlight as brims lift high in front. There are sophisticated bonnets like Lilly Dache's "canote" smartly combined with a flowery fantail back; demure baby bonnets, often with taffeta streamers tied under the chin; and flattering felt or straw bonnets with simple, tailored lines.

The cloche this Spring, is softer and more feminine. Sometime the head-hugging crown is combined with a wider, rippling brim and at others, a simple mushroom brim is combined with a more detailed crown. A very wearable cloche is Florence Reichman's "birdcage" with an airy latticed crown and striped milan brim.

With warmer weather coming, the open crown becomes increasingly important and there are many "ventilated" effects, as well, in which the crown of the hat may be latticed, pierced with port-holes or fashioned of filmy mesh. The smooth-browed look is also stressed in charming open-crowned halo hats for afternoon and evening, such as Sally Victor's wonderful white horsehair-and-straw halo of stars.

Clothes on the whole, are muted and soft. White is a refreshing accent for black and dark town colors, but there are occasional shocks of vivid color in the Spring picture. A notable exception to the pastel symphonies is the bold red hat, smartest when trimmed with flowers or ribbons of the identical shade of the hat itself.

Yellow beige-gold tones, warm as Spring sunlight are widely used and there is a complete range of "natural" straw shades from off-white to burnt toast.

Spring hats for schoolgirls, this year, have the uncluttered lines an active little lady prefers. Yet in almost every case, there is always an exclamation point—perhaps

GIRL SENTENCED IN DELINQUENCY; MATE, 19, HELD

A 17-year-old Circleville wife was committed to the Girls' Reformatory at Delaware by Judge Sterling Lamb following a hearing, Tuesday, in Pickaway County Juvenile Court. Declared to be suffering from syphilis, the girl-wife who had been charged with juvenile delinquency, asserted that her 19-year-old husband had taken only one bath in a five-month period.

No charge was filed against the husband, a suspected syphilitic, who was given a blood test and was then taken into custody by Police Chief W. F. McCrady pending the outcome of the test. Chief McCrady said that a charge of vagrancy might be placed against the youthful husband.

peaked crown, a streamer, a flower or a novel band—to take these smartly styled young chapeaux out of the strictly utilitarian class.

The breton influence, head-fitting crowns and face-framing brims are as important to a girl's hat as they are to her mother's this Spring. Bonnets, of course, are always on hand and like the grown-ups, this year's young bonnets look smartest with a brim that lifts in front to reveal the hairline.

Deeper pillboxes, an oversized version of the bellhop hat, are a favorite with Juniors and there are 1946 versions of the sassy sailor (usually with upcurving breton brims). Cloches have classic charm and saucy Scotch caps, cut away in back, are good. For the older teens, the flower halo and the flower-decked hat continue to charm.

Light, sunny Gold, snappy Scarlet, blues from ice to navy, Spring greens and bark browns are favored in both straw and felt hats. White is again a winner and there are all sorts of natural straw shades from creamy white to deep burnt tones. Trimmings are discreet but different ranging from perky field flowers to pearl buttons and pastel seashells. No wonder the younger set is hat-happy!

A notable exception to the pastel symphonies is the bold red hat, smartest when trimmed with flowers or ribbons of the identical shade of the hat itself.

COUCH REPORTS
$13,800 QUOTA
IS NOT IN SIGHT

Chairman Rallies Support
As Mercy Campaign
Nears Close

With only two more days remaining in the annual fund campaign of the Pickaway County chapter of the American Red Cross, Vaden Couch, general chairman, said Wednesday that while collections had not been tabulated the drive was far from its goal of $13,800.

The campaign which got underway March 1 has lagged from the start. Chairman Couch said that the last tabulation of pledges, made last Saturday, showed that at that time only $1,802.50 of the quota had been donated.

335 SOLICITORS OUT

During the closing days of the drive approximately 335 volunteer solicitors are making a canvass of the city and county. About 85 of these are working in Circleville under the direction of Joseph P. Noecker, chairman of the city campaign. The others are making solicitations throughout the remainder of the county.

Clarence Barnhart is chairman of the group soliciting contributions from industries and utilities, and Leslie May is head of a committee asking funds from fraternal organizations and service clubs.

In urging strong support of the drive, Couch cited the work of the Red Cross in aiding veterans. He said:

"Our work with veterans offers a fine example of Red Cross long range planning and continuity of service. When a man becomes eligible for a discharge whether he be an able-bodied veteran or a discharged hospital patient, Red Cross service is constantly available every stop along the path to full civilian status, and even beyond; for a veteran or his family may always look to their Red Cross chapter for guidance and help in time of need."

DEMOLINIZATION WORK CITED

"As the nation's greatest armed force in history is demobilized, the local Red Cross chapter anticipates pates an increasing demand for this specialized service.

"Red Cross has many invaluable services to render to the public," Couch continued, "but especially to be commended are the Red Cross specialists in veterans affairs who maintain close relations with veterans' organizations and keep abreast of legislation and other matters affecting the veteran. At all field hospitals our workers help the new veterans prepare his applications for pensions and other government benefits. He can, if he wishes, designate Red Cross to be the agency to represent him in the development of his claims."

"If no claim is filed at the time of discharge, the local chapter, Home Service workers will help with his application and in securing evidence to support it."

WORK WELL-ORGANIZED

"The Red Cross field director station in the Veterans Administration offices in Columbus assists with the processing of local claims. During the trying period of readjustment, chapter aid, both financial and advisory, is available to veterans and their dependents."

"The veterans work in Pickaway county is under the direction of Mrs. Beulah Madison, executive secretary, and offers various types of assistance to veterans and their families."

Chairman Couch appealed to everyone to give to the Red Cross during its funds campaign so that the invaluable services might continue.

Operator Found To Handle Collections; Safety Drive Being Prepared

The garbage collection project of the Circleville Junior Chamber of Commerce is reaching completion.

Gerald Miller, chairman of the public health committee, reported at the organization's meeting in Hanley's Tuesday noon.

Milner said a private operator has been found to handle collections of garbage and rubbish throughout the city. Collections will start April first. The contract will be signed this week, Milner said.

Safety Drive Ready

Dick Morris, chairman of the youth welfare committee, outlined a school safety program, which will be started in April. The aim of the program is to distribute safety leaflets, show safety films and conduct monthly safety assemblies at the schools. Plans are to erect silent policemen and other safety signs at the schools.

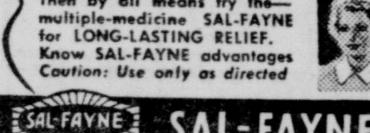

The Jaycees will sponsor a one-day stop of the Mills Brothers 3-ring circus at Circleville April 29. President Frank Wantz announced. Wantz appointed the following committee on arrangements: John Evans, chairman, Paul Rodenfels and Ed Amey. Proceeds will be used for the school and public safety program.

It was announced that Ralph Amey, chairman of the Cancer Relief Fund drive, and his committee of Bob Dean and George Eitel, Jr., will start soliciting upon receipt of supplies from national headquarters.

COUCH REPORTS $13,800 QUOTA IS NOT IN SIGHT

Chairman Rallies Support
As Mercy Campaign
Nears Close

With only two more days remaining in the annual fund campaign of the Pickaway County chapter of the American Red Cross, Vaden Couch, general chairman, said Wednesday that while collections had not been tabulated the drive was far from its goal of $12,800.

The campaign which got under way March 1 has lagged from the start. Chairman Couch said that the last tabulation of pledges, made last Saturday, showed that at that time only $1,802.50 of the quota had been donated.

335 SOLICITORS OUT

During the closing days of the drive approximately 335 volunteer solicitors are making a canvass of the city and county. About 85 of these are working in Circleville under the direction of Joseph P. Noecker, chairman of the city campaign. The others are making solicitations throughout the remainder of the county.

Clarence Barnhart is chairman of the group soliciting contributions from industries and utilities, and Leslie May is head of a committee asking funds from fraternal organizations and service clubs.

In urging strong support of the drive, Couch cited the work of the Red Cross in aiding veterans. He said:

"Our work with veterans offers a fine example of Red Cross long range planning and continuity of service. When a man becomes eligible for a discharge whether he be an able-bodied veteran or a discharged hospital patient, Red Cross service is constantly available every stop along the path to full civilian status, and even beyond; for a veteran or his family may always look to their Red Cross chapter for guidance and help in time of need."

DEMOLITION WORK CITED

"As the nation's greatest armed force in history is demobilized, the local Red Cross chapter anticipates

States an increasing demand for this specialized service.

"Red Cross has many invaluable services to render to the public," Couch continued, "but especially to be commended are the Red Cross specialists in veterans affairs who maintain close relations with veterans' organizations and keep abreast of legislation and other matters affecting the veteran. At all field hospitals our workers help the new veteran prepare his applications for pensions and other government benefits. He can, if he wishes, designate Red Cross to be the agency to represent him in the development of his claims."

"If no claim is filed at the time of discharge, the local chapter, Home Service workers will help with his application and in securing evidence to support it."

WORK WELL-ORGANIZED

"The Red Cross field director station in the Veterans Administration offices in Columbus assists with the processing of local claims. During the trying period of readjustment, chapter aid, both financial and advisory, is available to veterans and their dependents."

"The veterans work in Pickaway county is under the direction of Mrs. Beulah Madison, executive secretary, and offers various types of assistance to veterans and their families."

Chairman Couch appealed to everyone to give to the Red Cross during its funds campaign so that the invaluable services might continue.

JAYCEES READY GARBAGE PICKUP

OPERATOR FOUND TO HANDLE COLLECTIONS; SAFETY DRIVE BEING PREPARED

The garbage collection project of the Circleville Junior Chamber of Commerce is reaching completion, Gerald Miller, chairman of the public health committee, reported at the organization's meeting in Hanley's Tuesday noon.

Miller said a private operator has been found to handle collections of garbage and rubbish throughout the city. Collections will start April first. The contract will be signed this week, Miller said.

SAFETY DRIVE READY

Dick Morris, chairman of the youth welfare committee, outlined a school safety program, which will be started in April. The aim of the program is to distribute safety leaflets, show safety films and conduct monthly safety assemblies at the schools. Plans are to erect silent policemen and other safety signs at the schools.

The Jaycees will sponsor a one-day stop of the Mills Brothers Ring circus at Circleville April 29, President Frank Wantz announced. Wantz appointed the following committee on arrangements: John Evans, chairman, Paul Rodenfels and Ed Amey. Proceeds will be used for the school and public safety program.

It was announced that Ralph Amey, chairman of the Cancer Relief Fund drive, and his committee of Bob Dean and George Eitel, Jr., will start soliciting upon receipt of supplies from national headquarters.
